

GATEWAY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT

Student Names, Images and Work in the Media

Purpose: During the school year, your child may have opportunities to have their work or activities publicized. Examples include: student work published on the Gateway website; feature stories about student performances or school-wide events in newspapers or on television; and photographs of students “in action” on the Gateway website and in local and regional newspapers. Student first names and last initials (example: Paul F.) are used to identify pictures of three or fewer students and student work on the district Web Site. When reporters visit Gateway, they often speak with students and use their full names in covering the story.

Procedure: Any parent who does not want their student’s name, photograph, or work published on the district website, or included in newspaper or television coverage must complete and return this form to their school office. Parents who do not return this form are granting permission for their student’s work and photograph to be displayed on the district website, and for their student to be interviewed, quoted, and photographed by visiting reporters.
